YouTube: Discussion Starters, Student Projects, Video Quizzes, and More
We’ll discuss the many ways you can use YouTube in your classroom, including newer capabilities to “link” videos into a more interactive experience. Participants are encouraged to bring along a syllabus to focus our discussions on your specific needs.
March 2, 2:30–3:30, CL1-207
March 15, 12:30–1:30, CL1-207

Internationalizing the Curriculum
We will share tips and experiences for adding global and international components to your classes.
March 16 and 30, 11:30–1:30, CL1-207

College of the Overwhelmed (Book Club)
This book addresses the impact of stress on individual students and the university community at large, that emotional development must coincide with intellectual development in order to ensure success.
March 18, 30 and 31, 12:00–1:00, CL1-207

Effective Classroom Discussions
How do we successfully convince all our students to participate in freeform discussions? When should we encourage exploration of new directions and when should we curtail off-topic discussions? We’ll discuss existing research and compile best practices in this interactive workshop.
March 19, 4:00–5:00, CL1-207
